

The market is dominated by mobile applications which represent thirty-eight percent of total usage. Web services account for twenty-seven percent, while cloud infrastructure contributes nineteen percent. Consulting services take eleven percent of the share. The remaining portion, five percent, is attributed to experimental AI products and research projects.